Magnifica Humanitas: Session 3

Outline: the technocratic paradigm and digital power (#90-96); Artificial intelligence (#97-111); What must not be lost (#112-126); The authentic "more than human": grace and Christian humanism (#127-8); Two cities and two loves (#129-130)

General Reflection Questions
Throughout this reading and discussion, you are invited to consider your responsibility and role in the reconstruction of a civilization of love.

- An insight, perspective, or question I have from reading this chapter of Magnifica Humanitas is:

- A quote/excerpt/section that caused me to ponder deeply, feel discomfort, or experience hope is:

Chapter 3: #90-130

- I consider a moment or recent example of when I recently used artificial intelligence in daily life. Did I perceive the information as objective? How did I utilize my own discernment and judgment when engaging with the information? (ref. #100)

- Do I accept my limitations (of body, time, knowledge) as a space that opens me to the help of God and others? Do I seek in technology an "infinite power" that makes me believe I never need anyone? (ref. #118-120)

- How can society ensure that technology is developed and shared in ways that protect human dignity and serve the common good rather than only profit or influence?